

net.art

---

What is net art?

Net art is an abstract and sometimes rebellious art form that uses the Internet as its main material. Net art works often draw on data from other Internet materials and websites, which helps give them their unique dynamics and briefness.

In other words net art is a site-specific art form bound to its own presence and impact on the Internet and not in any museums or galleries. It is therefore necessary to create online spaces where the art can be exhibited and experienced.

Top left: Jeremiah Johnson, Void Gaze, 2011 Top right and bottom left: Jeremiah Johnson Bottom right: Jeremy Rotsztain, Blade Runner Portraits, 2007